

The FCC should not implement any proposal that would undermine individual state privacy protections such as Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. Indiana's current law has been very effective in preventing unsolicited and unwelcome sales calls at our residence. It is important that my family continue to enjoy this reprieve from what used to be a constant interruption of our homelife.